Cambridge Dictionary, kindness is the quality of being generous, helpful, and caring about other people, or an act showing this quality. Aristotle defined kindness as, "helpfulness towards someone in need, not in return for anything, nor for the advantage of the helper himself, but for that of the person helped." Here we can see two important highlights of kindness; it's always made to serve someone else and nothing should be expected in return.

• Why does kindness matter? There are many benefits to kindness. According to scientists, when we practice kindness our body produces a dose of a hormone called oxytocin which is one of the so-called "feel good" hormones, meaning we are biologically programmed to take care of others. Imagine all the benefits that could come from this "feel good" sensation in the classroom!

• Encouragement to keep learning: Adding all these benefits together, it's safe to say that kindness promotes an environment that is safe and engaging enough for students to feel motivated to keep learning and that there's enough empathy for their peers to accept their mistakes and even learn from them, helping each other again and again.

Benefits of kindness in the classroom

• Empathy: Since kindness is based on serving someone else, when we are kind this helps us develop and create a more empathetic environment, which means people will be nicer and more respectful to each other.

- Well-being: Studies published in the Random Acts of Kindness Foundation show that there are a number of biological benefits of kindness that affect our overall well-being.
- According to scientific research, some of these benefits are an increase in energy levels, high doses of "feel good" hormones like oxytocin, endorphin and serotonin as well as lowered anxiety and stress levels, pain and even depression.
- This doesn't affect only the two people in making and receiving an act of kindness. According to the author Simon Sinek in The Scientific Power of Kindness, even people who witness an act of kindness get a dose of oxytocin. This means that bringing acts of kindness as a culture in the classroom can create a safer place where students and teachers feel good more often and are contagiously motivated to be kind to each other.

From my first year as a teacher 35 years ago, teaching kindness has been important to me.

PILES OF PENNIES TO HELP HUNGRY THE STATE OF PENNIES TO HELP HUNGRY

RANDY BAZEMORE / Miami Herald Staff

The Youth Ending Hunger Club at North Beach Elementary School, 4100 Prairie Ave., displays some of the 50,000 pennies it collected to represent the 35,000 people who die each day from hunger. The group, which had sought to collect 35,000 pennies, will donate the money to charity.

This Youth Ending Hunger Club collected 50,000 pennies to represent how many people died of hunger each day in 1991. Kids learned they can help others with just pennies.

Over the years thousands of bags were decorated and filled with love my students and delivered to the homeless of Miami.

Next we started decorating brown bags for the homeless and filling them with peanut butter sandwiches and other goodies donated by students.

After a mystery schoolwide illness prohibited our peanut butter sandwich assembly line (not our fault), we shifted our gears to our Backpack program that eventually expanded to the formation of the Kids 4 Kids Club where kids performed weekly acts of kindness.

The $12,000 prize money from this grant competition was used to start Kids 4 Kids.

About Kids 4 Kids

Kids 4 Kids empowers children to create a better world through kindness. We're dedicated to providing essential resources, support, and opportunities to children facing various challenges. We believe that every child deserves a chance to thrive, regardless of their circumstances.

FILL-A-BACKPACK CAMPAIGN

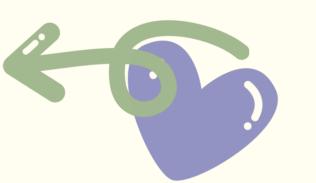

The FILL-A-BACKPACK CAMPAIGN is Kids 4 Kids' primary initiative, where volunteers fill thousands of backpacks with school supplies during the summer. These backpacks are then distributed to children in migrant camps and shelters on the first Saturday of August. The experience teaches volunteers about the ongoing challenges many children face, including homelessness, abuse, and illness.

At Kids 4 Kids, we believe every child deserves the tools and support to succeed. Since 1997, we've been dedicated to providing educational resources, financial assistance, and disaster relief to children and families in need.

OTHER PROJECTS

SUPPORTING SICK CHILDREN

Kids 4 Kids also raises money to assist families whose children have been diagnosed with illnesses. 100% of all donations earmarked for children battling illnesses are given to families during this difficult time. Funds are given to families to assist with medical bills and loss of income when families have to miss work to take care of a sick child.

BOOK RECYCLING & DISTRIBUTION

Kids 4 Kids Book Recycling and Distribution program encourages kids and members of the community to donate used and new books for children who could not afford books of their own.

Kids 4 Kids has collected and distributed thousands of books over the years.

THOUSANDS OF BOOKS DONATED

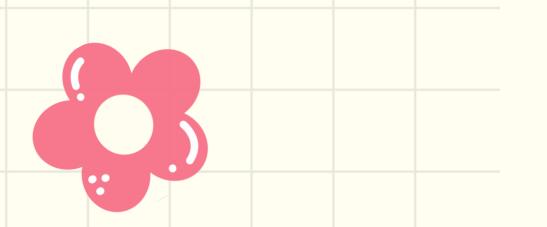

HURRICANE RELIEF EFFORTS

After Hurricane Dorian, Kids 4 Kids in collaboration with families from Kids For Kids Academy, Miami Dade County Schools, Neighbors 4 Neighbors, South Florida Roofers, and Catering the Event we helped families in Grand Bahama. Our Community raised money and also donated 9 containers filled with school furniture, whiteboards, roofing materials, and boxes of food for families during their time of crisis.

$250,000 RAISED

OTHER PROJECTS

Kids 4 Kids organizes activities throughout the year to engage children in helping others. During Valentine's Day and Halloween, they create treat bags and cards for children in shelters, hospitals, and those experiencing homelessness. They also collect gift cards for Thanksgiving and the December holidays to provide support to families in need.

At Kids For Kids Academy, part of the Elementary curriculum is using the 40 Steve Hartman Kindness 101 videos, one a week as part of the morning routine. Teachers school-wide use the same concepts each week, starting with #1 on Steve Hartman's Kindness 101 YouTube Playlist.

Each video is only 5-6 minutes long, and the use of his children in the segments makes it relevant for Elementary kids. After the video, the class discusses the definition of each kindness concept.

KINDNESS JOURNAL

After the video, the class discusses the definition of each kindness concept. The definitions are found in the journal I created, which can be found here.

The journal pages follow the order of the Kindness 101 playlist, making it easy to track student progress and reflection.

Throughout the week, students have a chance to write about the segment in the journal and draw pictures. If you do not wish to copy the journal, teachers can make one for themselves and write the Kindness concept with the definition of the word on the board, and students can transfer it to a dedicated Kindness Journal composition book.

Dear Parents,

In school we read the book Have You Filled Your Bucket Today. This heartwarming book encourages positive behavior as children see how rewarding it is to express daily kindness, appreciation, and love.

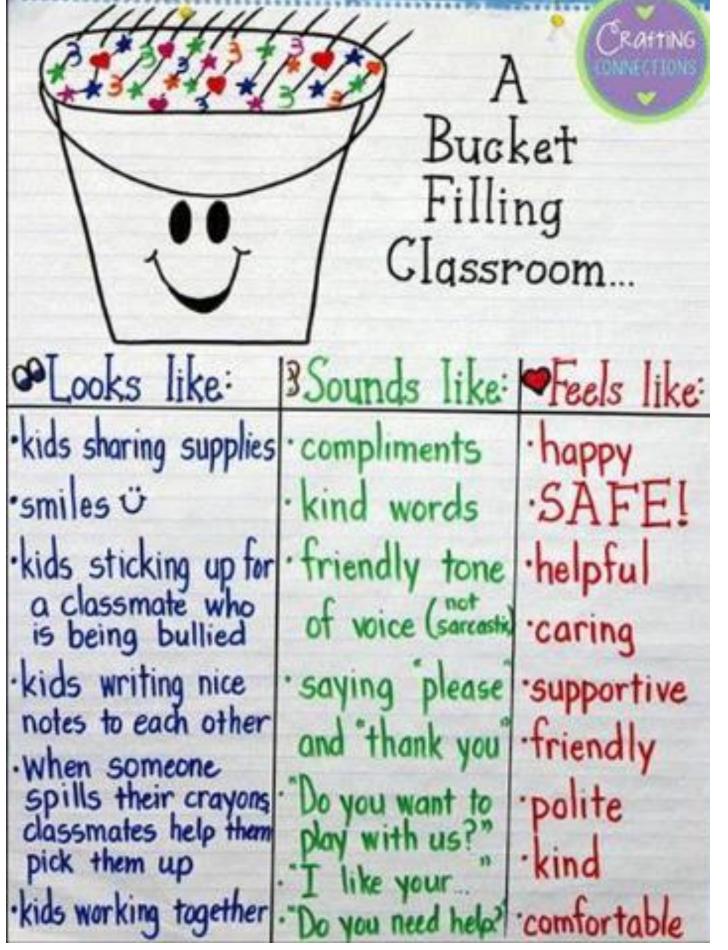

The book explains to children that we all carry an invisible bucket in which we keep our feeling about ourselves.

When our buckets are full, we are happy; when they are empty, we are sad. It is important to know that we can fill our own bucket and so can others. We fill buckets by saying nice things to the people around us. We fill buckets by doing nice things for people.

Please help your child fill the buckets of two friends on each of the given buckets. Help your child by having them dictate kind statements about their friends and help them to write them on the buckets. When finished, please help your child cut the buckets out and bring them back to school.

BUCKET FILLERS

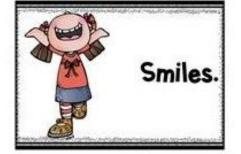

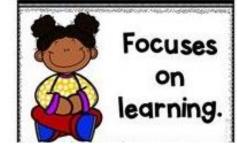

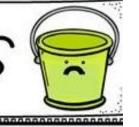

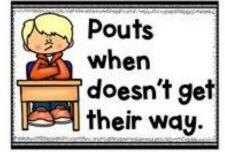

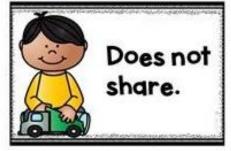

BUCKET DIPPERS

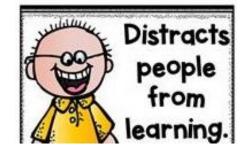

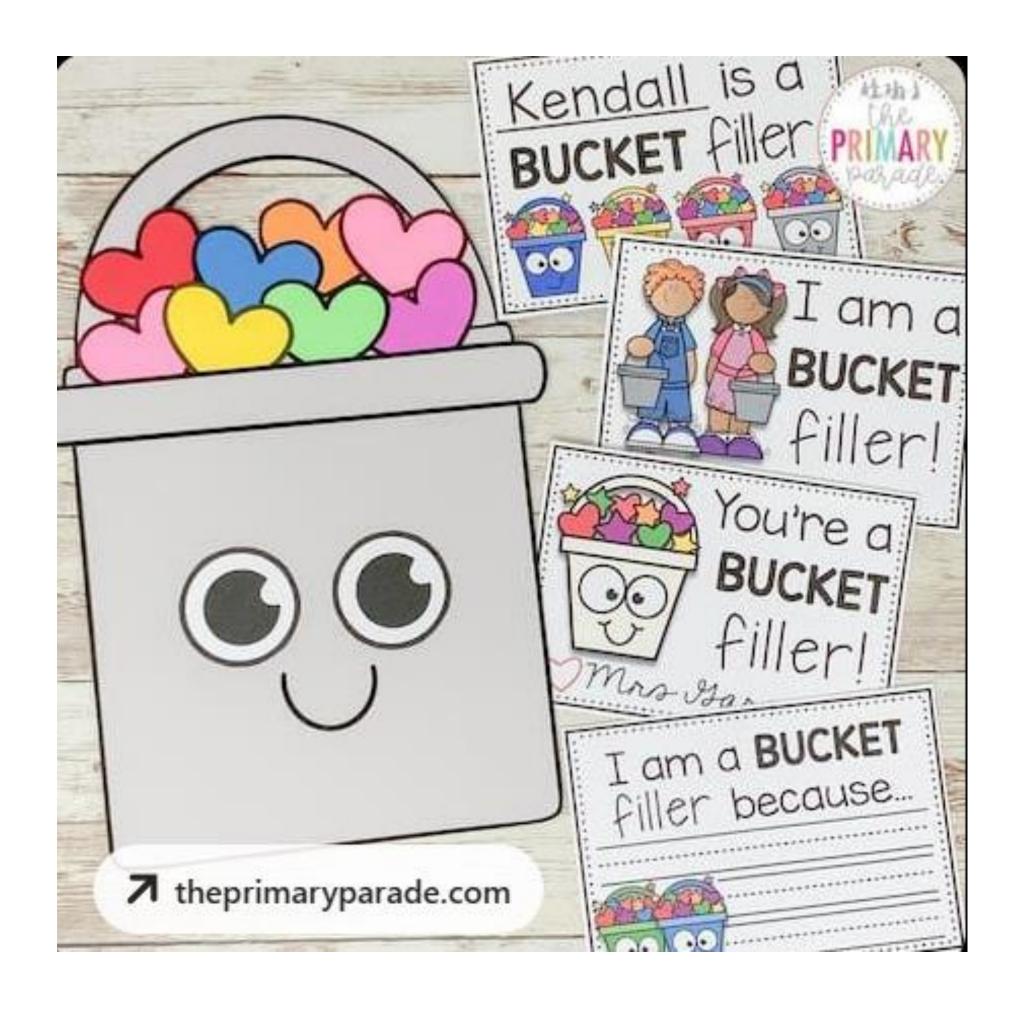

Our Bucket Filler Pledge

We pledge to do our best to be bucket fillers each day,
by being kind to others
and watching what we say.
If we accidentally spill
the bucket of a friend, we'll say we're sorry and be kind until their bucket is full again.

BE A BUCKET FILLER

Cut out the good behavior choices and put them on the green bucket.

Cut out the bad behavior choices and put them on the red bucket.
